Ministry Ideas

Churches, associations and mission groups all over are involved in some amazing ministries. These are just a few examples to spark your imagination. What ministries have you come up with for your marketplace?

International Students

There are many ways you can minister. ESL classes, holiday meals, conversation clubs for friendship and practice in English, shopping trips and movie nights. There is a tremendous need for opportunities for international students to visit an American home.

School Shoes

Not every child has new shoes to start the school in, or shoes for their chosen sport. School counselors can help you find children with these needs.

Homework Clinic/Tutoring Program

This is a wonderful ministry for teachers. Some churches have integrated this ministry into the whole church and use it as an outreach.

Ministry to Women Prisoners

The needs of women prisoners are very different than those of male prisoners. Helping them keep in touch with their children and providing a woman-to-woman connection can change lives.

Encouraging Law Enforcement

We appreciate what they do but we do not often tell them. Cookies, notes of encouragement, little gifts to tell them how grateful we are can be a special ministry.

ESL (English as a Second Language)

You will need special training for this, but with the changing face of our communities, this is a great way to get to know your neighbors.

Mentoring Young Mothers

Many young mothers are far away from their own mothers and many never had a mother teach them how to nurture. You can fill that gap.

Teacher Prayer Calendar

Ask the teachers in your local schools if they would like to be prayed for. My guess is they will probably be thrilled.

Food pantry

In our land of plenty there are still people who are hungry. There is always work to do in an existing food pantry ministry organizing, collecting, meeting with clients. If your community does not have a food pantry think about how one could be started.

College Fellowship Meals

Check with your local Baptist Campus Ministry. They often need churches or groups to sponsor meals. Home cooking is a tremendous draw for college students.

Emergency Care Bags

Your hospital emergency room may need care bags for all kinds of emergencies. Rape victims may have special needs only other women can understand.

Truck Stop Ministry

Tracts, bottled water, coffee, or fellowship, people on the road need to hear some good news.

Community VBS

Not every child will be brought to your church's Vacation Bible School. Whether in English or Spanish, you can reach children who would never come to church.

Christmas Gift Shop

Helping families struggling to have gifts at this special time of year can be a way to open their hearts to the real meaning of Christmas.

Ministering to At-Risk Youth

Your local juvenile detention center is a place where birthday cakes, "thinking of you" cards, and friendship are in short supply. Some people just need to hear the simplest words of encouragement.

Literacy

This is another area where special training is required, but there are many people in your community who can not read. You can help them.

School Supplies

Many schools post supply lists at local stores. Teachers would appreciate packages of supplies for their students who cannot afford them.

Ugly Quilts

Famous in several associations, these quilts go to homeless people (no one steals an ugly quilt) on mission trips, and to newborn babies. Use your sewing talent for this kind of fun.

Habitat for Humanity

You may not be much at swinging a hammer, but how about furnishing a kitchen with dish towels and kitchen gadgets. Or maybe you could prepare a meal for the first night in the new home. Get to know the new homeowners.

Have a Party

Invite neighbors, co-workers, ball team moms, or others you meet in your daily life to a party in your home. Have a theme, make decorations, good food, and provide a comfortable atmosphere. Take this opportunity to tell these women about the good news of Jesus Christ in this relaxed, non-threatening setting. Page Hughes' book, Party with a Purpose, released by New Hope Press, is chock full of ideas if you need them.

Help a School

Every community has a school and every school has needs. Principals or guidance counselors can let you know about special projects and needs in the school. Provide school supplies, read to younger students, or listen to beginning readers as they read. Find out who needs new shoes to start school.

Bake Some Cookies

Get together with other cookie bakers once a month to make cookies to distribute. The cookies can go most anywhere people would appreciate a freshly baked cookie. Fire departments, police precincts, college dormitories, Ronald McDonald houses, and retirement centers, the list is endless.

Welcome a Newcomer

Most neighborhoods have newcomers from time to time. Take a place of cookies or even a meal, if you have time, and meet the family. Invite mom to a bible study, give her advice on schools and dry cleaners, find out the family's needs and just be a new friend.

Mentor a Young Mother

Locate a young mother who does not go to church. If your church or community has a seeker Bible Study, invite her to go and bring her to the meeting. Pick her up and make sure childcare is available. Check on her during the week. Provide her with Christian parenting materials. Talk with her about how a relationship with Christ helps a woman to be a better mother. Talk about her need for personal salvation.

Help a Woman in Crisis

Save make-up samples and trial size personal items for women in your local city or county jail. Create rape crisis kits that contain deodorant, sweatpants, panties (clothing is often kept for evidence), Kleenex, to take to the hospital emergency rooms Find out the needs from your local domestic abuse center.
